

Multistate salmonella outbreak linked to garden of life RAW meal products: CDC

4 February 2016

The products have a long shelf life and may still be in people's homes. Consumers with the recalled products shouldn't eat them and retailers shouldn't sell them, the CDC said.

The investigation is ongoing and updates will be posted as more information becomes available, the agency said.

More information: Here's where you can find the full list of the recalled RAW Meal products.

Copyright © 2016 HealthDay. All rights reserved.

(HealthDay)—A salmonella outbreak that has sickened 11 people in nine states appears to be linked to RAW Meal Organic Shake & Meal Replacement products made by Garden of Life, federal health officials say.

One person has been hospitalized. No deaths have been reported, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Ten patients who were interviewed said they consumed RAW Meal products in the week before they became ill. Health officials in Utah and Oregon said salmonella was found in open containers of RAW Meal products collected from patients' homes.

On Jan. 29, Garden of Life recalled some RAW Meal Organic Shake & Meal Replacement products in original, chocolate, vanilla and vanilla chai varieties due to possible salmonella contamination. The products were sold online and in retail stores across the United States.

APA citation: Multistate salmonella outbreak linked to garden of life RAW meal products: CDC (2016, February 4) retrieved 12 October 2022 from <https://medicalxpress.com/news/2016-02-multistate-salmonella-outbreak-linked-garden.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.